Claims 1, 6 or 11 of the Martin '982 patent

OR

Claim 104 of the Leithem '585 application

Explanation of why each claim designated as corresponding to the count is directed to the same patentable invention as the count:

The count is a bifurcated count that includes as count alternatives the respective independent claims of the Martin '982 patent and the Leithem '585 application. The respective dependent claims correspond to the count because the additional limitations defined by those claims do not make them separately patentable.

*The serial number and filing date of each application the benefit of which is intended to be accorded must be listed. It is not sufficient to merely list the earliest application necessary for continuity.
